photos and documentaries. Your flight is comfortable, air conditioned transportation from Las Vegas to the Grand Canyon Airport. The flight is approximately 45 minutes. Spend about 3 hours total on a guided coach tour including two stops for photos and breath taking views of Grand Canyon. An "on the go" lunch is provided.

- Mather Point: This is one of the view point you'll encounter as you enter the South Rim area, named for the National Park Service's first Director, Stephen Mather. This unobstructed, awe-inspiring point on the South Rim offers that "perfect view" of the Grand Canyon featured in countless books and movies. Also at Mather Point is the Canyon View Information Plaza, housing the Canyon View Visitors Center, a large bookstore, and ample restrooms.
- Bright Angel: Here you'll see the circa 1935 Bright Angel Lodge. It has a gift shop, lounge, and history room. In the summer, visit its old-fashioned ice cream fountain! Also at Bright Angel Point are:
  - Lookout Studio, a gift shop and lookout point built on the rim's edge near the Bright Angel Lodge; and,
  - Kolb Studio, a photography studio built in 1904 and run by Emery and Ellsworth Kolb (the Kolb brothers produced canyon subject stills and were first to film a river-running trip down the Colorado).

About three hours pass between the time you land and the time you fly back to Las Vegas. The total tour duration is approximately 7-8 hours, including round-trip flight times, hotel transfers, and pre-flight check-in.
